Grow the Newer and Better Dahlias For Pleasure and Profit

It is not extravagant to pay ten dollars for a fine dahlia, for it will bring you something that will add so much to your life that you will be well repaid for the investment. Then, others of the comparatively new dahlias will pay you well for it is not idle expense but good sense for there is nothing you can buy for a dollar or more that will bring you such returns as do these wonderful flowers.

Buying better and newer dahlias means that you get something which will interest you and bring you pleasure. In this alone you are repaid for whatever you put into these flowers. You get something that you do not see in every dahlia garden and that will bring you satisfaction. They will draw many friends to your garden and afford real pleasure to them as well as to yourself.

You often buy other things which are new or which you want, so why not do the same thing when buying dahlias? One dahlia that is different or finer than those generally grown will afford more pleasure than many cheaper ones. Think over anything that you can buy for the same money and see if it will bring you so much of pleasure and satisfaction.

Dahlia prices are based on supply and demand. When roots of any variety become plentiful the price is low. When scarce the price is more.

Taken merely as an investment, suppose you buy a dahlia for $5.00. You get the pleasure its wonderful blooms will bring and when you dig your roots some of your visitors who have admired it will want to buy. If you sell two roots for one-half the price you paid you get your money back and will have some stock left for planting next season. You have had one season of pleasure and can look forward to other seasons growing from this same dahlia stock. It is truly an investment in pleasure, in health and in friendship, and without loss.

Dahlias It Is a Pleasure To Grow

Having checked up on stock and purchased additional stock for next season our list of offerings has been carefully revised and we submit it with the sincere belief that if you choose any of the dahlias listed you will get full value for your money.
